A U S T R A L I A

Edition 6, March 2010

In 2010, OLPC Australia will deploy thousands of laptops to remote Australian children. We will work with schools and communities to ensure that our solution is effective and sustainable.

In 2010, we are going to change the educational landscape of the country.

Please, be a part of this journey.”

Rangan Srikhanta, Executive Director, OLPC Australia

Thank you

Stanley from Kiwirrkurra,
Western Australia, with his XO.

Jigalong

OLPC Australia's deployment team has just returned from the first deployment of the year, and one that has set the precedent for those to follow throughout 2010.

Each of the children between ages 4 and 15 living in Jigalong, located in remote Western Australia, now have an XO laptop. The charity has also provided education devices for Elders, teachers, teacher aids and other members of the community.

This is another big step towards change for education in remote Australia.

Give an XO

In this country there are half a million children living in the most testing of conditions, conditions in which many modern technologies cannot survive. The majority of these children are Indigenous. OLPC Australia wants to provide these children with an XO, a device designed to engage the child in their own education, and open their window to the wider world.
